Introduction

Are you looking at a pile of medical bills or dealing with a drop in income in the aftermath of an injury? Getting hurt sometimes means you can't get back to work. That is scary when you have a stream of medical bills coming in the door.

A lawyer can help you get compensation for your injuries. If you want the money you deserve, avoid making these seven mistakes at all costs.

#1

You Forgot to Document the Scene

Let's say you were clipped by a car while on your bike. We wouldn't want you to leave the scene with zero information about the incident. Take photos of the bike and the car. Take a video of the whole scene. We can use this later as evidence.

You Didn't Talk to Witnesses

A photograph of two men standing outdoors. The man on the left is younger, with brown hair and a beard, wearing a blue button-down shirt under a brown and grey plaid blazer. He is smiling and looking towards the older man. The man on the right is older, with grey hair, wearing a grey blazer, and is looking back at the younger man. The younger man is holding a white disposable coffee cup. The background is a blurred city street.

We don't want key witnesses walking away never to be seen again after witnessing your accident. We want to be able to track them down. Get their contact information. What they say might be valuable to your case later.

You Waited to Go to a Doctor

#3

A photograph of a male doctor with a beard and glasses, wearing a white lab coat, examining a young woman's arm. The woman has long blonde hair and is wearing a white tank top. The doctor is holding her arm with both hands, looking at it intently. The background is a bright, clinical setting with large windows.

You want to stop being in pain, right? No one likes being injured. A trip to the doctor's office is the answer. Don't wait. It's not going to help you get better.

#4

You Didn't Follow the Doctor's Advice

If your doctor said you should rest or avoid lifting heavy things, you do not want a photo of you lifting something heavy to come up in court. The insurance company doesn't care that it was your kid's hockey bag. They don't care that you pushed through the pain. They care that you appear to not be injured. They will use this to try to keep money away from you.

#5

You Waited to Hire a Lawyer

Are you staring at the screen worrying about your case? An easy solution would be to pick up the phone. Call our office and schedule a free consultation. We don't charge you for our services unless we win your case.

You Talked to the Insurance Company

#6

Did the insurance company call you? They probably sounded polite. Their goal is to get you to think that they just want to help. Their real motive is to get a statement from you saying you caused the accident or you aren't injured. They are trained to get these kinds of answers out of you. Do not take their phone calls.

#7

You Hired the Wrong Lawyer

It's probably not too late to make this right. You want to hire a lawyer who won't settle. Get a lawyer who will fight to get you all the money you deserve. A sign that you do not have the right lawyer is one who doesn't seem ready to go to trial for you.

Conclusion

The Stakes are High
